DETAILED ACTION

1. This action is responsive to communications: original application filed 05/11/1999.
2. Claims 1-14 are currently pending in this application. Claims 1, 6, and 14 are independent claims.

Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for the purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language; or " (Emphasis added.)

Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Levy (U.S. 5,944,790).

As to independent claim 1, Levy discloses a computer-readable medium having computer-executable instructions for performing steps comprising:

- allowing a user (the user) to select (select) a language (the selected language) in which an electronic file (home page) is to be displayed (col.5, lines 21-39);

- providing the electronic file to the user (a user would access home page 500 the first time by entering http://XYZ.COM on the location or URL line of his or her web browser, receiving home page 400; col.5, lines 29-39);

- translating the electronic file into the language selected by the user (at the bottom of home page 400 are interactive buttons 420-440, each of which is labeled with different name of language in that respective language. The user may select one of the interactive buttons 420-440 in order to change the display on the user's screen to that of a home page with the selected language; col.5, lines 21-39) and

- displaying the translated electronic file to the user (will automatically provide this particular user with German language home page (col.5, lines 21-39).

As to dependent claim 2, Levy discloses the electronic file is provided to the user via the Internet (the internet; col.2, lines 23-47/ the World Wide Web; col.5, lines 40-50).

As to dependent claim 3, Levy discloses the electronic file is an HTML document (a homepage; col.5, lines 21-39).

As to dependent claim 4, Levy discloses a Web browser displays the HTML document to the user (Web browser; col.5, lines 21-39).

As to dependent claim 5, Levy discloses the Web browser translates the HTML document into the language selected by the user (a user would access homepage 500web browser ...provide this particular user with German language home page; col.5, lines 21-50).

As to independent claim 6, the rejection of claim 1 above is incorporated herein in full. However, claim 6 further recites:

- assigning at least one word in the electronic file at least one identifier which corresponds to a translation for said at least one word; and
- using said at least one identifier to translate said at least one word into a translated electronic file.

Levy discloses:

- assigning at least one word in the electronic file at least one identifier which corresponds to a translation for said at least one word (at the bottom of home page 400 are interactive buttons 420-440, each of which is labeled with different name of language in that respective language; col.5, lines 21-50);
- using said at least one identifier to translate said at least one word into a translated electronic file (the user may select one of the interactive buttons 420-440 in order to change the display on the user's screen to that of a home page with the selected language; col.5, lines 21-50).

As to dependent claim 7, Levy discloses the electronic file is an HTML document (a home page; col.5, lines 21-39).

As to dependent claim 8, Levy discloses the translation for said at least one word is stored in a data structure on a server (server 10, col.5, lines 21-50).

As to dependent claim 9, Levy discloses the data structure is an array (Fig.2).

As to dependent claim 10, Levy discloses the translated HTML document is displayed by a Web browser (Web browser; col.5, lines 21-39).

As to dependent claim 11, Levy discloses the translated HTML document is provided to the user via the Internet (the internet; col.2, lines 23-47 / the World Wide Web; col.5, lines 40-50).

As to dependent claim 12, Levy discloses a plurality of words in the HTML document are assigned a plurality of identifiers (British/English, Espanol, Francais, Deutsch, Japanese; Fig.4) that correspond to said translation.

As to dependent claim 13, Levy discloses a plurality of phrases in the HTML document are assigned a plurality of identifiers that correspond to said translation (English (Ingles) ...Francais (French); col.6, lines 22-38).

As to independent claim 14, the rejection of claim 1 above is incorporated herein in full. However, claim 14 further recites:

- assigning each word in the Web document an identifier that corresponds to a translation for said word;
- transmitting the Web document to the client;
- using the identifier for each said word to identify the translation for each said word, based upon the language selected by the client; and
- replacing each said word in the Web document with the translation for the word.

Levy discloses:

- assigning each word in the Web document an identifier that corresponds to a translation for said word (at the bottom of home page 400 are interactive buttons 420-440, each of which is labeled with different name of language in that respective language; col.5, lines 21-50);

- transmitting the Web document to the client (a user would access home page 500 ... receiving home page 400; col.5, lines 29-39);

- using the identifier for each said word to identify the translation for each said word, based upon the language selected by the client (the user may select one of the interactive buttons 420-440 in order to change the display on the user's screen to that of a home page with the selected language; col.5, lines 21-50); and

- replacing each said word in the Web document with the translation for the word (the home page 400 is in English ... provide this particular user with German language home page 500 for subsequent accesses col.5, lines 21-39).
